A Random Encounter could be anything from a Distant, suspenseful noise to a Nearby deadly Monster. They serve major purposes; for the 'game' will always be a situation for the Players to tackle.

Secondly, they reinforce the fact that the world the Characters belong to exists beyond their own Actions in it.

The tables on the following page are for random Creature encounters for when the result of an Encounter Roll is a Creature. The GM should simply choose to do either:

A - Roll 1d6 and add the lowest Character's Level to the result.

- or -

B - Add the dungeon level to the lowest Character's Level.

The GM should cross-reference the result against the most thematically appropriate table from the following page (or one of their own creation) to determine what Monsters/NPCs appear.
